How Did I Score Compared to Others?

A percentile is a number between 1 and 99 that shows how your score ranks compared to other students who took the test. It represents the percentage of students whose scores are below yours. Say, for example, your Math percentile is 47; this means you did better than 47 percent of college-bound seniors. Percentiles are based on the most recent scores earned by students in the previous year's graduating class who took the SAT[®] during high school.

Will My Scores Change and Why?

Your test score represents a snapshot in time. If you took the test multiple times that number would likely be different on each test. This is why a score range may better represent your true ability; it looks at multiple snapshots of your score instead of just one. Usually, Critical Reading, Mathematics, and Writing scores fall in a range of roughly 30 to 40 points above or below your true ability.

Should I Take the SAT Again?

Beginning March 2016, there's a new SAT that's focused on what research shows to be essential for college readiness while reflecting what you're learning in your classes. The best way to get ready for the SAT is by working hard in challenging high school courses, and as you strengthen your skills you may want to take the new SAT to show off what you've learned. How Should I Send My Scores to Colleges?

This student score report is for your use only. Most colleges require you to have the College Board send them official score reports — they don't accept copies of student score reports, online score reports, or score report labels on transcripts.

With Score Choice™, you decide which scores you send to colleges. Choose by test date for the SAT and individual test for SAT Subject Tests™ — in agreement with an institution's stated score-use practice. Visit studentscores.collegeboard.org for detailed analysis of your scores and more information on sending scores to colleges.

College Plan

There are a lot of great possibilities to explore in choosing a college. Get a step-by-step road map and advice on what to do when. Access your online score report for details.

SAT Practice

Keep improving your college readiness skills with resources available at Khan Academy®. When you take the new SAT (beginning March 2016), you can further connect to FREE, world-class personalized practice recommendations online on khanacademy.org/sat.

SAT Subject Tests™

Get ahead by challenging yourself. Let colleges know you're interested in specific majors or programs by taking SAT Subject Tests. Some colleges may use those scores to place you out of introductory-level college courses.
